MEMBER OF THE ENGLISH NOBILITY FALLS IN LOVE WITH HIS OWN DAUGHTER—HIS SEPARATION FROM HIS WIFE—A SUIT FOR RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL

A most extraordinary case has recently been neard in the Court of Divorce, in London, before Lord Penzance, the Judge of the Court. The Hon. Henry Loftus, the nephew of the Marquis of Ely, has had his domestic circumstances revealed to the world, and it would have been well for him and for his own family if he had concealed his sorrows in his own breast.

In 1851 Henry Loftus held a commission as Lieutenant in her Majesty's Life Guards, and was allowed by his uncle, the Marquis, $800 per annum. He was very handsome, about six feet high, with large blue eyes, black evebrows, and was an exceedingly well built man. At a ball given at Lady Palmerston's he became acquainted with a Miss Adeline Montgomery, whose father had been chief attache to the British Embassy in Paris. After a few months' acquaintance they were married, and Mr. Loftus sold his commission and went to reside in him to live in England in the style to which he had been accustomed prior to his marriage. Belgians at the palace of the King. They became acquainted with a Baron Steiner, a young and handsome Belgian who wrote beaushort visits to London. Baron Steiner was, was a handsome woman, a very fair represent- ing" on an extraordinarily economical planand in Baron Steiner's leisure hours, and they were many, he composed some very beautiful sonnets addressed to the beauty he so much admired. He wrote them partly for amusement and partly to gratify the vanity of Mrs. Loftus. In August. 1869, Mr. Loftus, after a short excursion to Paris, returned unexpectedly to Brussels, and he found the Baron Steiner of champagne he had been imbibing he showed Loftus accepted the challenge, seconds were ciated by the fact that none of it was nearer obtained, and in the suburbs of Malmes, which than I10 miles to a railroad or navigable stream.

Mrs. Loftus re-married in Brussels, giving up the house they had occupied, but hired a less expensive house, and her daughter Emmeline was her she became incapable of controlling her pasmissed her. On his arrival in Brussels he tions. A report has just been issued by the of £400 a year. On his arrival in Brussels he staid at the Hotel Bellevue, the best hotel in Brussels, and addressed a letter to his wife, who was living in the Rue de Waterloo, asking her to consent to an interview. It was impossible that, as an English member of the aristocracy, she could object to grant an interview to her husband, although they had been separated so many years. He told her the sequel of his life after he had separated from her. Mr. Loftus' wife listened to the history with patience as it was told to her by her husband. As Loftus was leaving, having stated that his daughter was well provided for, and drawing in strong language a picture of his misery, his wife asked him if he would live again with her as her husband. Mr. Lof-tus told her it was impossible under the circumstances. There was no possibility of bridg-ing over the chasm, and that their misery they must both carry to the grave. Mrs. Loftus did not believe in this, and as Mr. Loftus had no evidence against his wife in reference to any improper intrigues with the Baron Steiner, she commenced suit against the Honorable Mr. Loftus for a restitution of conjugal rights, and under the peculiar circumstances of the case, seeing she had committed no crime of which the Divorce Court takes cognizance, Baron Penzance had no alternative but to reinstate Mrs. Loftus in her original rights.

RAILROAD FINANCIERING.

Arkansas, If a New York Tribune corres pondent may be trusted, has shown the most brilliant example of railroad "financiering," yet displayed in connection with State subscriptions and guarantees-which is saying a great Brussels, his income being too small to enable deal, for a great many millions have found their way into the pockets of "enterprising" railroad men who have taken upon themselves the About fourteen months after his marriage his burden of "developing the resources" of the wife gave birth to a beautiful child that was sunny South since the war. The story is that christened Emmeline Montgomery. Now, this patriotic and ingenious delike Dean Swift, a great admirer of female veloper of the State's resources (above all, inbeauty, but only in the abstract. Mrs. Loftus genious), proceeded in his work of "developative of the highest style of English beauty, doubtless reasoning that the more he might have left from the subsidy, the better he could "develop resources" elsewhere and thereafter. So he bought iron enough to lay ten miles of

In-stead of buying ten miles more of iron, like the ordinary, slow-going, plodding manager, he simply sent his iron car back to the first AVING DETERMINED TO CLOSE in the drawing-room with his wife.
